Welcome to Fishtail, Montana:

A place where wildlife far out number people, the views are of open landscape and majestic mountain ranges, and the most constant sound is of the crystal clear Stillwater River. It is a place where nature will heal your wounds, renew your energy, and lift you to new heights; and a place where families can spend quality time together, strengthen relationships, re-establish goals, and reflect on life. The clean air and pristine surroundings compel you to focus on the important things in life. It is a place that will not be easily forgotten.

The Lodge at Fishtail

The town of Fishtail has a population of 78 and is less than one city block. One of its greatest landmarks is the Cowboy Bar and Supper Club, the local hang out and a must see for the first time visitor. The General Store is also a good place to pick up last minute forgotten necessities. The lodge itself is 15 minutes from Fishtail, the last part of which is up a private gravel road.

The lodge is located at the boundary of the Custer National Forest in the middle of some of nature's most amazing vistas. The unspoiled wilderness provides nature lovers with loads of things to do. The area provides numerous places to hike, bike, and white water raft, or just relax and enjoy nature and take in the views.

For those who enjoy fishing, there are many great spots near the lodge, such as Mystic Lake and the Stillwater river for great fly fishing. For those who prefer a guided fishing trip, there are outfitters and fishing supply stores that will make a visitor's dream fishing trip a reality. For those who want to see nature from a different perspective there is always horse back riding and let's not forget there is golf for those that can not live without that little white ball.
